Newly Redesigned Web Site from United Air Specialists Simplifies Search for Clean Air Solutions

CINCINNATI, OH — June 5, 2006 — United Air Specialists (UAS), manufacturer of high-performance air cleaning equipment for a wide variety of commercial and industrial applications, announces the launch of its newly redesigned web site, www.uasinc.com. The site guides visitors to the recommended clean air solution for their specific application and provides full product details on UAS' line of dust collectors, Smog-Hog[®] mist collectors, kitchen emissions systems and Smokeeter[®] commercial equipment.

From the user-friendly home page, visitors can select the industrial process for which they are seeking an air cleaning solution, then view recommended equipment based on concentration of pollutants (light, moderate or heavy) and usage (whether the equipment is used intermittently throughout the day or continuously).

Visitors can also search available clean air solutions through the "Interactive Floor Plan." This feature illustrates how different UAS systems are used in a variety of industrial applications.

For each UAS product complete product information is provided, including:

- Specifications
- Details on compatible filters
- Available options and accessories
- Downloads of related literature
- Photos of field installations
- Explanation of how the product works

Other site features include:

- Convenient filter cross reference chart to easily match filter part numbers from 35 manufacturers with preferred UAS filters
- Warranty information for all UAS equipment
- Answers to frequently asked questions and troubleshooting tips
- Glossary of common air cleaning terms

- Links to more information on indoor air quality regulators and trade groups
